Resolutions Adopted by the White House Conference.

Governors of the several States sum up their views on the conservation of the resources of the nation

We agree that our country's fu-ture is involved in this; that the great natural resources supply the material basis upon which our civ-ilization must continue to depend, and upon which the perpetuity of the nation itself rests

We agree, in the light of the facts brought to our knowledge and from information received ources which we cannot doubt, that the material basis is threatened with exhaustion. Even thought of the President in send-doubt, that the material basis is threatened with exhaustion. Even as each succeeding generation from from the birth of this nation has performed its part in promoting the progress and development of the republic, so do we in this generation recognize it as a high duty to perform our part, and this duty in large degree is the adoption of measures for the conservation of the natural resources for the conservation of the natural resources in a subject of transcendent importance, which should engage unremittingly the attention of the natural resources in a subject of transcendent importance, which should find expression in equilation of the natural resources is a subject of transcendent importance, which should of the natural resources in subject of transcendent importance, which should of the natural resources in a subject of transcendent importance, which should of the natural resources in a subject of transcendent importance, which should of the natural resources in a subject of transcendent importance which we live and which yields our food; the living waters, which fertilize the soils supply power and form great avenues of commerce; the forests, which yield the materials for our homes, prevent erosion of the soil and conserve the materials for our homes, prevent erosion of the soil and conserve the materials for our homes, prevent erosion of the soil and conserve the materials for our homes, prevent erosion of the soil and conserve the materials for our homes, prevent erosion of the soil and conserve the heat had had the governors of the states are intended to the soil and conserve the natural resources, with the intrinse of an object of the soil and conserve the forests, which yield the materials for our homes, prevent erosion of the soil and conserve the natural resources of continued operation and action of the situation of

A BUSINESS VIEW OF THE SITUATION.

It is a pity that the country should again be confronted with an attempt for political ends to sandbag the commercial and manufacturing interests for the benefit of a discredited labor organization and its votes. It is a worse pity that the attempt should come at a time when business needs nothing so much as to be let alone. It would be the worst pith of all if business were to be taken off its guard by the attempt and that at least we are to be spared. The best answer to the worst pith of all if business were to be taken off its guard by the attempt, and that at least we are to be spared. The best answer to the question whether business men remember, and see the danger, is found in the ten thousand telegrams and letters of protest which last week poured in on Congress and the President from business men in Seattle and Tampa, in San Francisco and New York. That uprising showed conclusively that the men who went out from their banks and factories and stores and offices to help elect McKinley in 1896 are going to take a similarly decisive share in the protection of their own interests this year. There was no mistaking the point of last week's protest. It served notice that the business interests are tired of fool-shows: that they are not going to stand for any more class legislation. ishness; that they are not going to stand for any more class legislation to help the chances of any political candidate. They are not asking for any legislation for their interests; those interests need peace more for any legislation for their interests, also increases. Even peace may be too dear at the price of suicide, however; and business men are coming to feel that it is better to fight than to be assassinated in the interests of a coalition of politics with "labor."—American In-

What this country needs now is not a radical politician, but a What this country needs now is not a radical politician, but a may not be a made and the standpoint of a business man. The consensus of opinion, as it comes from the uttermost ends of this country, the highways and the byways, the industrial centers in all sections, is to the effect that the business men must again enter the arena of politics as they did in the Bryan and McKinley campaigns. America has been known for many years as a nation of traders. Is it not about time that the Government should be run with some regard for business principles—Amer. ment should be run with some regard for business principles?—Amer-tean Industries for May.

Fishing Party Kill

Huge Snake Saturday.

Saturday afternoon a rattle snake was killed by the members of a fishing party on their return from Donah Ford. The snake was 4½ feet long, weighed seven pounds and had nine rattlers. It was eleven years old. Miss Florence Woods stepped over the snake, thinking it was a black stick, but she soon saw she was mistaken and her friends assisted her in killing it. The members of the party were: Messrs. Squires, Wm. Hoffilous, Tilford Harper, Lee Woods, Miss Florence Woods and Miss Lillie Harper.
